

Biography of Rev. Canon Lee Shiu Keung

Rev. Canon Lee Shiu Keung (1910-1969) , was a native of Hsiu-Hui, Kwangtung Province. After graduating from St. Paul's Boys' School in the 1920s, he went to St. John's University in Shanghai. In 1932, he transferred to Lingnan University in Canton. From there he went on to Ridley Hall, Cambridge, to study theology. On his return, he became a Lecturer in History in Lingnan University where he was later assigned as an Assistant-Professor. There he met Gilbert Baker, later Bishop of Hong Kong, who was also teaching at Lingnan University.

In 1941, he went to Harvard University and received his Master of Arts degree. Then he went to Hartford Theological Seminary where he hoped to receive his doctorate degree in divinity, but terminated his studies due to illness and subsequently returned to China.

In 1951, Lee Shiu Keung was ordained deacon in Chung Hua Sheung Kung Hui, diocese of Hong Kong and Macao. In 1954, he was ordained priest and became an assistant priest at St. Paul's church. In 1965, the Right Reverend Bishop R.O. Hall appointed him Canon Theologian. The ceremony held in St. John's Cathedral.
